Kidnapped Child and Fled City

ROBBED MOTHER OF ALL WORLDLY GOODS AND THEN STOLE SON.

Wife Sends Money to Pay Doctor Bills, Only to Find Husband Reducing Her to Abject Poverty for Benefit of Another.

A bit of domestic tragedy came to light yesterday in the application of Mrs. Severiano Valencia to an attorney for information as to whether she could sell the home of herself and Valencia on Chihuahua Hill. Half insane with grief, the woman wanted the money in order to pursue her husband and her kidnapped son.

Valencia left this city with the only child of the couple on Monday. He secured the child on the pretext that he wished to take him to get a pair of shoes before his wife went with the boy to her mother at Nogales, she proposing to separate from Valencia. The pair did not come back. Later Mrs. Valencia learned that they had gone to El Paso. Valencia took everything she had of a negotiable character before leaving, and she has no money with which to live, much less to follow him. Yesterday she learned that it was doubtful whether she could sell the house.

Valencia left his wife several months ago to visit El Paso, he claimed, for medical treatment. During the weeks following his arrival there he wrote to his wife repeatedly to send him money. The devoted woman sent all the money and jewelry she had, and then converted everything in the house that she could pawn into cash and forwarded that. After she had reduced herself to absolute want, she learned that Valencia was living with another woman at El Paso, into whose hands her hard earned money had gone. A couple of weeks ago, funds being shut off, Valencia returned here. His wife informed him that she would no longer live with him, and set about earning the money to go to her mother at Nogales. Valencia consented to her departure, and then stole the child.

THE ROOS INQUEST.

Evidence Submitted Indicated That Her Poisoning Was Accidental.

Phoenix, Sept. 20.—Hearing in the inquisition concerning the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Roos was resumed yesterday morning before Justice Burnett. The evidence brought out constituted an account similar to the Republican's story of the tragedy yesterday morning, though it rather strengthened the theory of accidental poisoning.

In the story of yesterday it was stated that Dr. Tafel said that when he reached the side of the unfortunate woman she murmured "strychnine". That was all the doctor heard, for he hurried away to his house nearby for medical appliances. Her husband reached her side at the time and heard her say, "strychnine," and also heard her aid, "by mistake; help."

It was also brought out that her married life had been a happy one, that she had not been subject to fits of despondency, and that except for an indisposition of which she had complained that morning she was as cheerful as ever. It is generally believed that the jury will find that the poisoning was accidental.

Officials Pronounce Houston Story Without Any Foundation.

Mexico City, Sept. 20.—The police officials of this city were interviewed tonight in regard to a news dispatch received here under a Houston, Tex., date in which a resident of this city tells in a Houston afternoon paper of an alleged conspiracy on the part of two Spaniards, natives of Barcelona to assassinate President Roosevelt of the United States. The dispatch stated that the Mexican police department had arranged to apprehend them upon their arrival at the port of Vera Cruz, but further states that the plans of the police miscarried and that the alleged criminals had landed and disappeared.

The police denied positively that there was any truth in the report and stated that in view of the friendly relations existing between the two sister republics if advance information of the coming of two such dangerous criminals had been received steps would have at once been taken to apprise the American government of the fact.

NOTES OF MINING CARRYING GENERAL INTEREST TO COPPERS

A contributor to the Mining Reporter takes the following view of the copper market:

The feature of the copper market for the year has been the comparatively low home consumption coupled with an unprecedented export to Europe. The foreign exports are at least 45 per cent greater this year than last and will undoubtedly exceed the year 1902. The importance of the latter may be gauged by the statement that 1902 was the record year of Europe's importation of copper from the United States. From the first of January to the end of August the United States exported to Europe about 150,000 tons, as against 168,000 for the whole of 1902. There is no sign of this movement diminishing in force. It may on the contrary increase in view of the fact the European copper stocks show on the whole, a decrease. Moreover, the present price of about 12-12 cents will tend to stimulate purchase.

We may safely predict that the copper stocks in the United States will show a decrease by the end of the year. To calculate the possibilities let us take the following data: We may safely estimate an output for the year 1904 of 325,000 tons; the stocks on hand at the commencement of the year were 75,000 tons; the imports will be about 75,000 tons, giving a total visible supply, for the year, of 475,000 tons. This is disposed by home consumption and exports. The consumption of copper in the United States is about 18,000 tons a month or about 220,000 tons per annum. The exports to Europe for the year thus far have been in the neighborhood of 150,000 tons or about 18,500 tons a month. The indications are that this export rate will be maintained and it is as certain as anything can be that September at least will show an export of 20,000 tons. At this rate the export for the year will reach 225,000 tons, but allowing for a decrease, which is possible, but not probable, we may figure on an export of 200,000 tons. Thus we have disposed of 440,000 tons, leaving a stock on hand of 35,000 tons at the end of the year, as against 75,000 tons for the commencement.

Now these ideas are based on admittedly uncertain figures, but we have carefully weighed every fact and cannot but believe that the deduction drawn is very close to the truth. To corroborate the deduction we may call attention to the fact that Phelps, Dodge & Co. are sold clean out to October and that the United Metals Company have but a small supply on hand to meet September demands.

Now what do these facts portend? May we not safely deduce from them that copper prices will advance somewhat? There is no question in our mind but that copper will reach 13 cents or better. We do not wish to see the old-time flurries and absurd prices asked for the red metal. This but reacts on mining and causes disturbances in the manufacturing business that can only be harmful. We do look, however, for the price of copper to go to the point where broad business principles require it to go between 12 and 14 cents a pound.

GREENE CONSOLIDATED.

The Cananea Herald says: "The declining tendency of late in evidence in Greene Consolidated Copper has given rise to more or less bearish inferences. It being reasoned in some quarters that the inside interests were liquidating, in order to more readily support Greene Consolidated stock. As a matter of fact, however, there has been no great amount of selling, nor are there any developments in the property which should make for pessimism. The report that the Greene Consolidated Copper company is averaging only about 5 per cent in the lower levels of the mines is said to have no existence in fact, these ores varying very little from the workings above. It is stated that from April to July the rock showed an average of 7.3 copper. During July there were mined and treated 31,000 tons of ore, showing a total output of 4,400,000 pounds, or 7.1 per cent copper, and in addition 49,000 ounces of silver and 376 ounces of gold. The balance of the production of 5,500,000 pounds was sent to El Paso in the form of concentrates. It is pointed out that the Greene Consolidated Copper Company does not, like other mining companies, include in their average fluxing ores, which contain a large excess of iron and but very little copper. If such ores were included, the average for July would show copper contents of nearly 9 per cent.

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that Mr. Greene will resign the presidency of the company. It certainly would seem strange if, after working some of the strongest financial interests in Wall street, he should withdraw because of outside opposition."

GOOD NEWS EXPECTED.

The letter issued yesterday from the W. H. Hopkins' office, says the Marquette Mining Journal, was as follows:

"There is no apparent probability of a setback to this market. In fact everything points to the further advance because one year's development work has been done since we had any substantial advance or any news on the properties to warrant it. But within a year a great amount of work has been done and consequently good reports on results are now coming out, and I do not suppose a quarter has been told, as work is at the stage now where results may come to surface at any time. For instance Friday and Saturday of last week P. & D. was a drug on the market at 28. Monday and Tuesday we received the news of the ore strike which we reported yesterday, and at this writing 36 is bid and no stock. Markets are practically bare of all stocks, excepting C. & A., and that is 96 asked and up a point and a half. Every stock is up and next Monday will be Junction and possibly C. & A. on a boom on account of the News to come out. C. & P. and L. S. & P. should go high."

Justifies Arizona's Statehood Claims

SAYS LOS ANGELES MINING REVIEW OF BISBEE REVIEW'S FAIR EDITION.

Tells Story of Territory in Complete and Interesting Manner—A Vast Amount of Matter of Highly Valuable Character to Mining Men.

Editor Richardson, of the Los Angeles Mining Review, writes editorially as follows of the World's Fair Edition of the Review:

This publication is alone sufficient to justify the statement printed on its first page, which reads: "Completely refuting the statements often made in Congress that Arizona was not ready for Statehood, single and alone, and as an evidence of our resources, these pages are published."

It taxes the memory to recall a more beautiful work of its kind than is this special World's Fair number of the Bisbee Review. It may be rightfully termed an "Edition de luxe." Finely printed, beautifully illustrated and handsomely bound, it is in every detail a splendid specimen of high-class newspaper work. But its value is not confined to its handsome appearance; its descriptive matter is on a par with its fine typographical features. It tells the story of Arizona in the most interesting way, forcing upon the reader the conviction that never at any time in the history of this country has a Territory more justly and fully equipped itself for promotion to statehood than has Arizona.

The publication contains so much that is interesting, particularly to mining men, that it would be difficult within the limits of a review, to recite them here. In addition to large views of the city of Bisbee there are views of that vigorous offspring of Bisbee—the city of Douglas. There are views also of all of the more prominent towns of Southern Arizona, Clifton among them, and of that other great mining camp across the border, La Cananea.

BUSTAMANTE WAS CAPTURED.
Prescott, Sept. 20.—Andres Bustamante, who shot and instantly killed Justice Reynolds at Crown King last Friday night, is today under guard of five men at Columbia, a small station about fifty miles south of this place.

Bustamante was captured this morning there after a hard fight with three officers. He was tracked to the house of a woman by three of Sheriff Roberts' deputies and surprised while asleep. As soon as awakened Bustamante got his rifle and before Deputy Mike Welch could defend himself he had been struck two vicious blows over the head, falling to the floor in a senseless condition.

The other two deputies closed in on the Mexican, and by beating him severely with revolvers were able to get his handcuffs on his wrists.
